Carmel Volunteer Fire Department Report

The annual report of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Volunteer Fire Department was filed last night with the City Council. No words were spoken, no debate ensued. It might have been buried in the pile of other regular reports — police, treasurer, building inspector, library and dog-catcher—except for our deliberately exhuming it and presenting it here.

Such an examination is merited. Any report which commences with the statement that fires in Carmel have increased 300% during the past fiscal year should be carefully and thoroughly scrutinized.

Fire Chief Robert Smith's opening paragraph states that a total of $13,000,000 in property and personal belongings were involved in the fires dealt with by the department. These figures are derived from fire underwriters and insurance company formulas. If they are compared to assessed values, which generally are assumed to represent something like 33% of real value, we find the value of property appearing rather stupendous.

The assessed value of improvements and personal property — but not land — last year was $11,768,655. If this is about 33% of real value, the fire department's report implies that almost 34% of all buildings and their contents were at one time or another during the year "protected" against fire.

But actual losses are another matter. The report states "our total loss through fire was only $538,686. The great majority of this loss — some $28,000 worth — came from two disastrous fires in which

Grave Crisis For Small Business

The struggle of small business to keep its head above water received another grievous setback last Thursday.

It was very small business indeed. Shortly after setting up shop, the enterprise was closed down by a deputy sheriff on the grounds that the management had not taken out a business license.

The merchants involved were four children, Teryl McBride, 12, Bolton Colburn, 7, and Cyrus Colburn, 6, who had entered into a limited partnership with Vicki Holman, 12, to sell vegetables grown in their gardens, and some painted tiles, at the side of the road.

While the Pine Cone was unable to interview the merchants themselves because they are reportedly in seclusion, their spokesman, Mr. Sam Colburn, confirmed the in-

Council Hacks Away At Routine Agenda

Last night the city council waded through a routine agenda, dispatching many matters of no earth-shattering consequence, but which, in the main, constitute the stuff of which effective government is composed.

They adopted an ordinance which requires the execution of an agreement holding the city harmless for damage or injuries as the result of encroachment on sidewalks because of construction, or other intrusions, and requiring that, collaterally, liability insurance in an amount not exceeding $300,000 for bodily injury and $50,000 for property damage be provided as well. This applies to the business district automatically, and to residential areas at the option of the Council.

Moving to correct an imperfection following the adoption of the hostelry tax ordinance on 5 July, the Council re-adopted the ordinance, James Buffington, Jr., having an unexpected chance to vote "no" once again, but in vain, as the other four councilmen voted "aye." The process will have no effect whatsoever on the application of the tax or its effective date, which remains 1 October.

Other ordinances adopted last night might change some zoning procedures respecting setbacks and the issuance of use permits and variances, and respecting the technique of their application.

On a stiff and self-conscious note, the council also adopted an ordinance dissolving the recreation commission. The fate of this

Oops!—In the report about the new officers of the Carmel Youth Center adult board, carried last week, the Pine Cone neglected (blush) to mention that Mrs. Waldo Hicks had been re-elected as secretary-treasurer. Karen, with becoming modesty, did not tell us about the error, but practically everybody else did.

Non Sequitur—Mayor Eben Whittlesey, Mrs. Whittlesey and daughter Debby, have just returned from a six-week European vacation, and an extensive tour of Scotland. They rushed back from Edinburgh so that they could hear the Stuart Highlanders Bagpipe Band in Carmel's Forest Theater, on 26 August.

Occupational Hazards—The Reverend Alfred Secombe, beloved one-time rector of All Saints' Church, and now of Walnut Creek, is vacationing for a month in Carmel, together with Mrs. Secombe and the children. He recalled one Sunday morning when, after the early service, he went up town to

I like to pay my bills in person. In these days of automatic billing, electronically processed checks, credit cards, mail orders, coupon-clipping and the telephone, the merchant and his customer frequently become disembodied spirits, known to one another only as account numbers, a mailing address or a telephone voice.

Recourse to these conveniences is supposed to make the way less painful and generally speed things up. One of the unfortunate results, however, is also to speed up the deterioration of human relationships. We find we are becoming more and more contained, circumscribed by process, method, and the sometimes disappointing fruits of convenience. Soon, indeed, we may find ourselves lonely satellites whirling through the dreary spaces of a completely partitioned and isolated society, unless we take advantage of a chance once in a while to meet a stranger, or expose ourselves, with all our faults, to the friendship and understanding of others.

The need to go to the post office to pick up our mail occasionally brings us out when we would rather not be seen or required to mix in the pleasant social ferment of people busy doing things. But the salubrious results, once we do, invariably revive and refresh. So can a casual tour about town to pay one's bills. This event can take on the air of a grand promenade, in fact. Most of the encounters are interesting, the conversations engrossing, the meetings with people in and out of stores enjoyable. Invariably I finish my rounds with a happy awareness of the great excitement of living.

Of course, I cannot recommend this tour with the same unbounded enthusiasm if one's funds are not as long as one's legs, or one's pocketbook is as flat as one's feet. In this instance a cheery "Good morning! I've come to tell you I can't pay my bill," may result in an altogether different reaction than I have been extolling. As a matter of fact, in such instances my advice is, don't.

Pine Needle—There is a merchant who has taken to parking his bright blue station wagon on Ocean Avenue on Sundays. The truck bears an unblinking, two-foot high legend banner the name of his business and its location, two blocks removed from the tourist-thronged thoroughfare.

Whether this gentleman is a victim of the parking problem, or merely unfortunately misguided zeal, it is not impossible that if he persists he may stir up a storm of resentment among merchant and citizen alike.

Business in Carmel has avoided, generally, the occasion for criticism of its practices. The consequences have resulted in healthy, rational and reasonably dignified competition which does no mischief to our society. It will be an unhappy day when an unleashed ambition for business excites our merchants to throw discretion and good taste to the winds, and Carmel in the trash pile, to achieve a

Politics

Abraham Lincoln has said that the object of government is to do for the people what needs to be done, but what they cannot do for themselves so well or at all. Within the past week government, large and small was busy, hopefully doing what needed to be done:

Senator Clair Engle was on the lookout for a corner. He said that if he found one with a recession around it he would favor a tax cut, but only then. Turning from corners, he addressed himself to the following problems which apparently he felt we could not resolve so well, or at all: what to do about Alcatraz; how to deprive the Bureau of Internal Revenue of their pound of flesh in the matter of taxes on compensation paid to WW II displaced Japanese-Americans; whether the Senate on the House should initiate appropriation bills (a dandy problem better kept out of public dispute; where the answer might very well be, "neither"); pumping more funds to the Department of Commerce for expanding world trade; and, lastly, producing more gold, "if there is any way to produce it without giving the appearance of having two prices for gold."

When the Senator frankly admits that he is worried about appearances he touches a deeply responsive chord, getting pretty close to the tender meat of our society, which has worried about this for a long time.

Senator Thomas Kuchel, not to be outdone, is wrathfully moved to strike out at innuendo and insinuation about U. S. Armed Forces purchasing procedures. Here, again, it is a matter of appearances, it appearing to certain other Senators that western defense industries are hooking on to an unconscionable number of contracts. Hurt and astounded, Kuchel admonishes his fellows: "Any Senator on this floor has a responsibility to ask for fair and equal treatment for his people. Every Senator on this floor has a duty to refrain from asking for more." The vision of senators to whom, perhaps, this thought had never occurred suddenly blushing and mute, when they were obviously on the point of asking for unfair and unequal treatment, comes through with clearly moral and refreshing brilliance. Particularly on the West Coast.

Congressman Charles Teague, his mind obviously on loftier things, had his picture taken alongside a model of the Telstar satellite. Whether seeking equal time with President Kennedy, investigating Edward R. Murrow's plea to Congress for a cut rate for the U. S. Information Agency on use of the overworked sphere, or merely waiting for someone to vacate the booth, the press release doesn't make clear. While there, he asks how many of his constituents believe that we should withdraw from the United Nations. He even provides a coupon to be cut out and mailed in, but allows neither twenty-five words or less for a reason nor offers a prize for the right answer.

Assemblyman Alan G. Pattee offers perhaps the most provocative suggestion of the whole week, one which I believe many people might feel a wild urge to take him up on — if he could guarantee results — without reading beyond the first line of his weekly column, which starts: "Without printing, our governmental activities would come to an abrupt halt."

State Senator Fred S. Farr is in San Francisco (although seen here Wednesday night), attending the American Bar Association. Here, clearly, is a function which many an American, misunderstanding the purpose of the gathering, vehemently believes he could do quite well for himself; as a matter of fact, with considerable competence.

formation, but would not divulge whether an appeal is being considered.

The business was being run from two orange crates mounted on a wagon. Whether or not this structure was approved by the county planning commission or the facilities were approved by the county health officer, is being investigated, together with the question of overtime parking.

Other factors are reportedly involved. Onions and radishes were being sold at 2c a bunch, an obvious violation of fair trade practices. Furthermore, the noted virtuoso, Mr. Sam Colburn, was playing inflammatory ballads on a harmonica, another offense against spectacular grand openings without an entertainment license—although the musician's union is not known to have lodged any protest.

Nobody has so far raised the question of zoning. The area, near Castro Lane and Pescadero, is zoned exclusively R-1, and the likelihood of a use permit or variance being granted is believed to be remote.

Though the legal, administrative, ethical and commercial problems are enormous, and an appeal to the Small Business Administration may be necessary to straighten out things, it seems improbable that any further commercial threats to the peace and welfare of the neighborhood or well-being of legitimate businesses will be forthcoming for the moment.

It is believed by informed sources that the gravity of the matter is understood by the children.

LODI GRAPE FESTIVAL OFFERS ART AWARDS

A total of $570 in art awards, with three prizes of $100 each, is being offered for winning entries in the Lodi Grape Festival and National Wine Show art exhibit, 14-16 September.

Lauren Wilkinson and Laurence Hosmer, directors, announce that the show is open to anyone in California. Awards will be given for landscape or marine oils, portraits, figures, or still life in oils; water colors, and mixed mediums.

Only contemporary art will be accepted, with exhibitors limited to two items, with only one in any section. Additional information may be obtained by writing to Box 848, Lodi.

CHURCH BROADCAST

Faith Without Creed, a 15-minute radio broadcast sponsored by the Church in the Round, Carmel, will begin Sunday at 10:15 a.m. over station KRML with the Rev. Karel V. Vit, minister of the new congregation, as speaker.

He will discuss topics of current and historic significance from a viewpoint of religious liberalism. Long a popular speaker on the Peninsula, Rev. Vit is a minister of the Unitarian-Universalist faith, ordained in 1932 in his native Czechoslovakia.

Architecture

Burde-Shaw & Associates will soon see the dedication of the new $250,000 control tower designed by them for the Monterey Peninsula Airport. The CAB is completing its checkouts this month. In the meanwhile work progresses on the design of garden offices for the Merritt House, historical adobe, in Monterey. Plans envision utilizing the surrounding open space, so as to preserve both the house and its venerable gardens. The project was commissioned by the Truesdell Development Co. Now under construction is a B-S & A design for Lincoln South, a six-unit office building on Lincoln near Eighth, for Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Tostevin and Warner Lee.

George Wilcox will see, before going to Europe, the completion of the new Normandy-style building on Mission south of Ocean for the Plaza Corporation, which will contain the Patisserie Parisienne of Pierre and Elaine Boissiere. An architectural as well as nostalgic note is the iron railing at the entrance to the shop. Admirably suited to the building, it nonetheless is a salvage piece from the old Carmel Theatre, one of the most turgid examples of the movie house Spanish style.

Olof Dahlstrand is completing a design study for Sebastian Sollecito, who contemplates an 80-unit, ten-story hotel for Cannery Row in Monterey. The high rise structure will front on a park extending to the beach, and will contain a restaurant and other hotel features. The matter presently pends before the Monterey Planning Commission.

CHURCH IN THE ROUND

Guest speaker at the Church in the Round Sunday will be Rabbi Abraham Haselkorn of the First Hebrew Congregation in Salinas. He will conduct the services at 11:02 a.m. in the Cypress Club, Lincoln near Eighth, Carmel.

Ordained in 1932 by the late Rabbi Stephen H. Wise, the Salinas religious leader has been for the past nine years a popular speaker on the Peninsula. Prior to coming to Monterey County, he served congregations in Poughkeepsie, New York, Menlo Park and Bakersfield, served four years

Fog and The Power of The Press

Last week the Pine Cone ran a scathing essay on fog. Practically all of the punch was contained in an ancient and particularly wicked curse in the head of the story: $-?!51&! The effect was ravaging, and the power of the press was, once and for all, confirmed beyond doubt; for, on the following morning the stubborn two-month fog reluctantly dispersed.

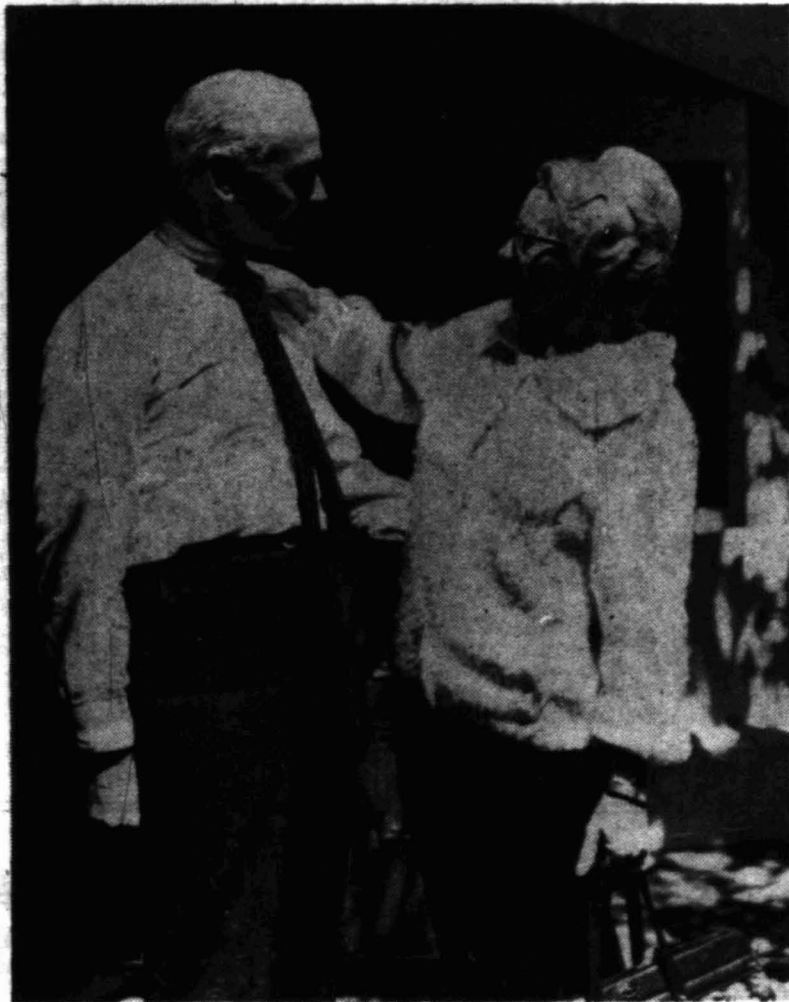

Somewhat impressed itself by the potency of its weapons, the Pine Cone set out to interview distinguished Carmelites, to obtain their reactions to the new environment which the conscientious efforts of the newspaper staff had brought about. Following are the answers which these citizens provided to the question, "What do you think of the Sunshine?"

BILL SMITH: Did you know that Jim Marquardt and the blackbirds like our high quality peanuts?

ENOS FOURATT: Virginia was saying that was a spiked buck. What do you think?

BETTY HACKETT: I was just telling John, don't take art so seriously.

CHARLES STRATHMEYER: Do they serve fish and chips here?

DOG: I think I hear my master calling.

MPVS Meeting

At the general meeting last Friday of the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services, Inc., plans were discussed for the 10 October Flea Market to be held at the Exhibition Hall at the fairgrounds. Mrs. W. Lincoln Noelle, chairman, and Mrs. Harold Pullen, co-chairman, are engaged in appointment of committees and gathering of merchandise for the sale.

The general business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Archer Allen, president. Mrs. Arthur Dresser, chairman of the by-laws committee, submitted corrections to existing by-laws relating to types of membership. There will be an orientation meeting for new members at the U.S.O. on 29 August, and the next general meeting will be followed by a luncheon honoring the new members on 7 September at the U.S.O. Arrangements for the luncheon are being made by Mrs. Edward Downard, hospitality chairman.

GARY KEARNS, flailing away for the Sports Shop Braves, is caught blasting a long, fruitless foul to left, in recent Pony League game.

Sun Sets For The Braves As Broncos Win Playoff

Monday night the sun went down at about the same time as the Sports Shop Braves did — to be precise, during the 5th inning. The skies had been bright up to that time, and the scoreboard glowed with the 5-1 score, which seemed to give radiant assurance that the Carmel team was well on its way to the playoff championship for the first half of the season. Then the Carmel Valley Broncos, a sizzling outfit which had already won the championship for the second half of the season, unloaded a couple of 2-base hits after the bases already were loaded, four runs streaked across the plate, and the Braves, humbled by errors and the wicked bats of the Broncos, watched the score and the sun simultaneously sink out of sight.

To be sure, the end of that gloomy inning only found the score tied 5-5, but the Broncos were to pick up one more run in the sixth and four tallies in the seventh, while the Braves, swinging frantically at the offerings of chance and the curves of Hall, the Bronco pitcher, could only eke out one more run. The final score, 10 to 6 in favor of the Broncos, was conclusive and no freak. The Broncos' 10 runs came on nine hits, whereas the Braves had their six runs from six hits.

The Broncos' runs were earned almost throughout their roster: Ziegler, 1; Panelli, 1; Hall, 2; Salsbury, 2; Gardner, 1; Porter, 1; Hagedorn, 1 and Leslie, 1. Panelli and Porter both collected doubles.

For the Braves both Thompson and Bucquet collected two runs each. Sparolini and Macy each added one run. The top of the batting order was frustrated, however, Thompson and Bucquet going hitless against the pitches of Hall, who worked the whole game. Sparolini, who hit 2 for 3, and Shone, who hit 2 for 4, were the guns that night, while Macy, Cox and Kearns each collected one run.

While Hall pitched and hit his team to its victory, the Braves' star was unquestionably center-fielder Cox, who made four perfect catches, none easy tries, in addition.

SPORTS CARS AT COTATI

Northern California sports car racing fans will be able to see some of the top West Coast drivers in action at the Benefit Sports Car Races, Cotati Raceways, Saturday, 11 August and Sunday 12 August.

The Cotati track, popular with drivers and spectators alike has already attracted a fine list of entrants: Cotati track record holder Don Hulete driving the Chevrolet-powered Jaguar; George Grien-zewitsch, modified car winner of the May Cotati event in his Cooper-Monaco, similar in size to the car Stirling Moss drove to victory at the 1961 Pacific Grand Prix; Corvette drivers Paul Reinhart and "Red" Faris; and Jay Hill with his Porsche Carrera are among the drivers entered in the 11 and 12 August meet.

Fouratt Marks Deer Season As Astounding

Last Saturday the coast deer season commenced in California. Enos Fouratt, mighty hunter he, was asked for some observations on opening morning. He reports the following:

Deer were scarcer than feathers on a frog. Because of the fog. The average hunter, equipped with muscle, money, an Abercrombie & Fitch rifle with scope, pair of boots, hunting pants, hunting coat, a large bottle of snake repellent and no brains was seen on that cold, damp morning in profusion. But no deer.

"I checked some of the local experts on Monday. James (Rinky Dink) Kelsey spent all day in the fog by himself and saw nothing. Dale Vandervort lost Doc Whitcomb. They met up again in a Carmel Valley pub. Wick Parsons missed a forked horn. Bruce Kendall, of Handley's yard, and Charlie Winters, the Village Jeweller, camped out on the San Carlos Ranch early Saturday. They didn't see a buck, but they do claim to have seen a small pig with a fancy poodle dog collar on it. At that time they had no snake repellent.

"Charles Renwick of Carmel and Judge Elmer Machado of Salinas both killed two-pointers on the Wilson Ranch."

Mr. Fouratt will also be asked to report on duck season.

ment planting of young and healthy pines will follow thereafter.

The council also: approved tree trimming for N. J. Laughlin, on San Antonio south of Seventh; for La Playa Hotel, on Carmelo south of Eighth; removal of two small black acacias on Lincoln north of Eighth.

After viewing with Arts Commissioner Geza St. Galy possible sites at the Forest Theater for a puppet theater, the Council continued the matter for another month.

Car Burns On Ocean Avenue

Major damage to the motor, tires and wiring of an automobile which caught fire from an unknown cause occurred yesterday, 4:25 p.m. at Ocean Avenue and Torres Street.

The Carmel Volunteer Fire Department was alerted by the police department, a telephone call and a person who walked into the fire station. Eleven members responded with three pieces of equipment.

Sport Cars

By ED LESLIE

It seems there are a lot of the "little cars" around town, as many here perhaps as in Santa Barbara or Palo Alto. And for good reason. Where people enjoy travelling, where narrow streets, forty-foot lots and thirty-year old garages exist, where handy parking places can be found under the oaks or between the pines or next to the fence, the shrewd drivers know the value of the smaller vehicle as a sports or personal car.

Before 1954 we didn't see many "little ones". Helen Heavey had her self-designed, self-built "Packard" station wagon. Alton Walker brought in the first MG-TC. Phil Hatton was to be seen in anything from an old Mercedes to the big Deussenberg that couldn't make a U-turn at San Carlos and Ocean.

When the MG-TDs became popular here, the VW also started arriving in large numbers. It was the beginning of an extensive and important change in the habits of Americans.

Professional people—particularly doctors and architects—were quick to take to the little cars. And so were service families, returning to the U. S. from service overseas. They frequently brought with them a foreign sports or small family car, to be sold on the American market. At the time that the Fifth Division came from Germany to Fort Ord under the Gyroscopic Operation some 1500 families brought about 500 imported cars onto the Peninsula, forerunners of the innumerable foreign-licensed Porsches, Opels, Taunus Kombis and Mercedes on our streets.

Many highly unusual cars can be found here from time to time—a classic import for Frank Bray, Bruce Locken or Alton Walker, or something special brought home from a trip abroad, perhaps to win the next Concours at Pebble Beach—possibly and SS 100 or a Grand Prix Sports adapted for street use, painted in flowing Italian red or British racing green.

Yes, for those who have seen the motoring habits in other lands, for those who enjoy our scenery, for those with a bit more leisure, or perhaps for those with the urge to drive something unusual, something economical, something emphasizing engineering and road-holding, the "little car" seems quite the obvious choice. Besides, we have men—and a surprising number of ladies, too—who see no need in dragging twelve feet of metal around behind the driver's seat, just as we have a generation that was raised in and around automobiles and that still likes to shift gears with a touch of skill.

The imported car is the ideal buy for the man who wants something a bit different, a car of modest prestige which doesn't reek of vulgarity yet without the suggestion of his having succumbed to Madison Avenue blandishments. It is worth noting, in closing, that Detroit has recently become

Carmel Children Want All Adults To See Inchling At Forest Theater

Anyone interested in the past of Carmel may see a display of Inchling posters and programs in the Seven Arts Court on Lincoln Street. They are being displayed by Herbert Heron, founder of the Forest Theater where a cast of 50 children will give a fourth performance of Inchling, a woodland fantasy, on Friday and Saturday nights. The play is being produced as a project of the Carmel Unified School District's summer recreation program under the direction of Mrs. Richard Lofton. It was written by Ira Mallory Remsen for presentation at the Forest Theater and received its first production in 1922. Since then it has been repeated twice.

For nearly two months television-age children have rehearsed in the outdoor theater owned by the City of Carmel. Captivated by the playwright's imagination, they have projected themselves into a world peopled by insects and found it fascinating.

This week end, in the public presentations of Inchling they are hoping to capture adults in this imagery, too. Gauzy wings will flutter about the stage framed by pine trees. Bonfires will glow at the sides of the stage. A new moon will glimmer in the sky if it's not hidden by drifting fog. Inchling will endure Bunyanesque struggles to attain beauty, love and flight. There will be the excitement of children, Carmel children, presenting a play for adults, and television screens will be forgotten as the 1962 Inchling production becomes part of the city's tradition.

These are the children who will be in the cast:

Melissa Lofton, Marc Duskin, Laurie Doud, Pamela Whitworth, Joe Nesbitt, Mike Filatiev, Tim Dahlberg, Carol Ann Henderson, Lisa Maas, Bill Edwards, Ricky Taylor, Chris Osserman, Carol Heisel, Linda Doud, Philip Goulding, Noel Fry.

Free Forest Theater Program On Sunday

This Sunday afternoon's program at the Forest Theater will be under the direction of Frederick Rider, director of the Golden Bough Circle Theater. Two scenes from She Stoops to Conquer by Oliver Goldsmith, presented by the workshop of the Golden Bough, will be presented.

Joe Broadman will entertain with folk songs, accompanying himself on the guitar. He is an art teacher in the Carmel school system.

Jan Kessler and his wife, Dora, will also be featured in pantomimes, using a style similar to Marcel Marceau. Mr. Kessler is a mime from Switzerland, who has performed and taught at the Dallas Theater Center in Texas. He made his local debut at the Tantomount Theatre this season.

Also at the theater, during the afternoon, will be Patricia Hall, demonstrating the art of mosaics.

The Actors' Company Scores With Thieves' Carnival

It is possibly poor taste and worse technique for a critic to separate a theatrical production from its vehicle; and yet, a play may be read and appreciated without performance, and a production may be enjoyed solely for its display of theatrical inspiration. The fault in such a dichotomy lies in its disregard of one more quality, for which most of us go to the theatre: the total experience. However, the ambivalence of my reactions on viewing the presentation of Jean Anouilh's play, The Thieves' Carnival, at the Tantomount Theatre, tempts me to it.

To treat last Friday's opening night only as a total experience would be to take refuge in colorful generalities accentuated by frightfully involved distinctions and exceptions. The result would be absurdly pedantic and of no conceivable virtue. Besides, it would deprive the Actors' Company of the undiluted praise it richly deserves. This group, so abundantly talented, displays in this first endeavor the enterprise, good taste, imaginative ness and dedication which are the prerequisites of good theatre — an aspiration not to be achieved by reliance on shabby tricks and notorious deceptions.

And so, I shall proceed to divide and conquer.

I will treat first the production, and with considerable enthusiasm. The direction of Francois Martin is simply superb, and I do not mean that it was obviously so, for had it been it would not have been superb. Martin's genius lies in his inspired eye for grouping, stimulating and purposeful movement, agreeable transitions, imaginative use of space and illusion, and an unflinching sense of proportion. A reverence for subtleties and deft restraint of exaggeration, both in the characterization of his actors and their dramatic conflict, marks him as a director of considerable dimension. Unlike a great many directors who might have imposed themselves on the proceedings like a drum major, Martin sensibly avoids any apparent evidence of his influence.

Before an actor can interpret a role he must understand the play; before a director can interpret the play he must understand the roles. Martin obviously understands both. His touch demonstrates how lucid, eloquent and delightfully adroit the stage can be when someone who is both skilled and enamored explores its attributes.

Babs Richardson as Lady Hurl— or Salome or Little Eva, for that matter—is one of the most delightful and admirable talents ever to tread the boards in this area. She possesses stage command which is both native and tutored. Yet she employs it not as a flail with which to subdue her fellow actors or drive the playwright into the wings, but as a facile instrument— (and droll it is at times) — to energize her role. The part of Lady Hurl is of prime consequence to the play, but of no consequence in itself, although it is the most completely developed there is. Babs threads it like a bright and rapid needle through the insubstantial fabric of the play, providing the cohesion, the syncope and the thread of relevancy without which the labors of everyone else, no matter how devoted, would probably come to naught.

John Ralph Geddis provides an accomplished foil to Babs's Lady Hurl in his portrayal of the charlatan and fraudulent duke, one of the many impersonations of an irrepressibly inventive pickpocket. It is exceedingly pleasant to watch an artist who is capable of the subtleties of comedy; whose movements, attitudes, presence and boundless sense of the delicately absurd permit him to infuse his role with the mischievous vitality it requires.

Peter David Heth, as Hector, one of the enterprising trio of pickpockets who are the protagonists of the play, displays some talent which may come off one of these days, but which in the meantime is not unpleasant to watch, in spite of its rather uncertain and self-conscious exposure.

Most others in the play suffer not at all from a lack of competence, though they do have to contend with parts that are all glitter (Continued on Page Eleven)

White Oaks Theatre Strikes Oil In Current Musical Offering, Wildcat

Members of the White Oaks Summer Theatre resident stock company have struck oil — a gusher — from a most unlikely well, Wildcat, the musical written solely as a Broadway vehicle for Lucille Ball, with a flimsy book by N. Richard Nash, music by Cy Coleman, lyrics by Carolyn Leigh.

But, despite the shortcomings of the book, anyone who enjoys seeing an excellently directed, youthful cast enthusiastically employ far from insignificant acting, singing and dancing skills to produce a rousing lively show, should not miss Wildcat, which will run through 19 August in the barn theatre in Carmel Valley.

Perhaps it is the Western setting and idiom that catches the fancy of the cast. Perhaps it is the simple plot, or the tunes, or need for almost constant motion. Who knows? And the White Oaks players don't care! Each of them thoroughly enjoys every onstage moment and transmits this enjoyment to audiences that applaud continually.

The lively songs are clearly delivered. Accompaniments are fine. Dancing, as in all White Oaks shows, is excellent. Sets and lighting are the best seen in any Peninsula show this season. Costumes harmonize with and enhance the sets as good costumes should.

Drumbeating Wildcat Jackson (Mary Sue Tatum) and her gentle, lame sister Jane (Jeanne Bartlett) burst on Centayo City in an ingeniously contrived car which Wildy has won in a poker game. After innumerable tribulations, all amusing though a little improbable, Wildy gets a well drilled on a site she acquires, as beguilingly as only she can, from Sookie (Ron Mullen), the dirtiest dirt farmer in the Southwest.

She assembles a drilling crew led by Joe Dynamite (Roger Gentry), a handsome, hard-drinking, loving Irishman... and the fight's on.

Victory comes, just where the audience expects it, at the end, but there's lots of riotous enjoyment in between. Beauty, too, such as the scene with the crew clustered around a chuckwagon fire on the prairie, also the dawn scene about the derrick, the latter a realistic wonder.

In spite of the excellence of the cast as a whole, however, some individuals stand out. First there is Roger Gentry. He handles Joe's Irish brogue like a charming native of the "ould sod," shouts when he's angry, soothes when he loves, gets wondrously drunk in between, and surprisingly yearns, underneath it all, to be a dentist. He is a real broth of a man.

Mary Sue Tatum meets all his challenges as she hauls up her jeans and in various moods keeps the plot a-plotting. Everyone loves (Continued on Page Eleven)

The Deep, Deep Bite: State Income Taxes

Californians have paid to the State of California as their income tax on adjusted gross income for 1960 the whopping sum of $31,353,154,000, State Controller Alan Cranston announced today. The total represents a $1.6 billion, or a 5.4 percent increase over the previous year. The average adjusted gross income per taxable return has risen from $8,364 the year before to $8,448 this year.

Marin County had the highest average, $9,953 per taxable return. San Mateo, Santa Barbara and Orange counties followed in that order. Monterey County was 14th, with an average return on adjusted gross of $8,154. At the opposite end of the list lay Siskiyou County, $6,750, and Yuba County, $7,047.

The returns reported this day contributed richly to the cash assets of the state. Cranston reported on 6 August that the money on hand in the state treasury at the close of the 1961-62 fiscal year amounted to some 3.6 billion dollars. This was possibly 2.73 million dollars over the previous year's closing. Cranston, perhaps sensing that the people might respond, "Well, that sounds like quite enough to run you for a while," promptly and dolefully observed that more than 95 per cent of the total was in special funds, restricted as to use either by the constitution, statute or commitment. This is, of course, as it should be. Free and unencumbered monies in public treasuries inevitably correlate with Parkinson's law.

But the amplitude of the public treasury is nothing compared to the sometimes surprising nature and extent of certain welfare funds, provided in one way or another from taxing sources: State Employees' Retirement Fund, $1,557,059,511; Teachers' Retirement Fund, $694,097,687; Judges' Retirement Fund, $2,903,600; and the Legislators' Retirement Fund, $428,063. This totals $2,253,578,861. With it, every state employee, judge, teacher and legislator might promptly be retired. If not replaced, the possibility of such a move meeting general public acclaim is not remote.

35TH ANNIVERSARY FOR CARMEL BANKER

Thomas L. Craig, vice president, manager, and trust officer at the Carmel office of Wells Fargo Bank, marks his 35th banking anniversary this month.

Craig joined the bank in 1927, serving at the Salinas main office until assigned to his present post in 1955.

Active in the community he has served as a director of the Monterey County TB Association, Community Chest, and Chamber of Commerce. He is a member of the Rotary Club and on the executive committee for the Carmel Business Association.

The banker and his wife, Mary, reside in Pebble Beach.

KIWANIS

At today's noon meeting of Kiwanis at Tom's Cafe, television actor Jack Kelly, currently appearing in the Wharf Theatre's production of The Music Man, told of his Maverick experiences on TV.

IT'S A WASTE OF TIME SAYS PROFESSOR'S STUDY

Telephone calls and casual visitors who are merely "maintaining contacts" are among the greatest thieves of time of busy executives, according to Dr. Joseph M. Trickett, professor of business administration at the University of Santa Clara.

"After many discussions and investigations relative to interruptions, I have come to the conclusion that there should be established periods in each important person's schedule (if he has a time problem) during which he should not be subject to interruptions by telephones or by people," Dr. Trickett says.

In addition, he lists five steps toward better control of executive time in the current issue of California Management Review, a business quarterly published by the Graduate Schools of Business Administration, University of California, Berkeley and Los Angeles:

1. Try to do only one thing at a time. Concentrate on one job at a time and don't spend the working day doing a little bit of this, a little bit of that, and a little bit of something else.

2. Complete each action. When going through a stack of mail or a pile of other papers, you should not lay any piece of paper down until some action has been taken on the particular piece at hand.

3. Your office layout should fit your needs. If your office is primarily a work room, your desk should be placed in a suitable corner where you can keep the material on which you are working at the moment without the necessity of attempting to maintain a clear desk top, as though you were the presiding judge at a trial.

4. Take your secretary into your confidence. A secretary who is well briefed knows what you deem to be important and urgent and can do a great deal to sort your mail and filter your telephone calls.

5. Set specific times for subordinate contacts. Each person should have a designated period during which he can expect to have an uninterrupted discussion with his organizational superior. Likewise, each superior should have a regular group session of all his immediate subordinates.

Besides these steps, Dr. Trickett prescribes adequate time for personal relaxation and recreation.

HIGH TWELVE CLUB

At tomorrow noon's meeting of the High Twelve Club, a movie, The Eruption of Kilauea, will be shown. All master masons are invited to attend.

LIONS CLUB

One of the many youth activities sponsored by the Carmel Lions Club is the support of the education of a young man in Austria. Each year the club lends financial support in the amount of $300 for him to continue his education, and regular reports are received from him regarding his progress. The most recent letter received by Lion Ernie Bixler is quoted here.

Dear Mr. Bixler,

I've got again your generous Scholarship from Lions Club in Steyr (Dr. Grohs). Many thanks for it, it's a very useful help to continue my education. I'm glad to tell you, my studies are very successful.

You would much oblige me by giving me your assistance also next winter-half. You may depend upon it that I will do my best to continue my education diligently.

Truly grateful,

TOWN HOUSE

The Reverend Milan G. P. de Lany, professor of Swahili and the East African languages at the Army Language School, will speak at the Carmel Foundation Town House at 3 p.m. Wednesday. His topic will be East Africa. Born in Tanganyika, Reverend de Lany grew up speaking Swahili, and is now writing a nine-volume textbook for use at the school. Since Swahili is the language of 35 million people in areas now going through a period of uncertain political development, both Russia and the United States are broadcasting programs to Africa in this language. All interested persons are invited to attend the lectures as well as the tea which follows.

The regular monthly luncheon, which usually takes place on the second Monday, this month had to be postponed until 20 August. Reservations are now being accepted. The shuffleboard group, which meets regularly with Mr. Goodspeed to coach them, is welcoming new members, either amateur beginners or experienced players.

Information about Town House activities may be obtained by calling MA 4-1588.

MASONS

Carmel Lodge Number 680, F. & A. M., will hold a special meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. to confer the second degree. Refreshments will be served after the meeting. All master masons and sojourners are invited to attend.

CARMEL BOARD of REALTORS

It is the policy of the Carmel Board of Realtors not to use "For Sale" signs or "Open House" signs. Wherever such a sign appears it is usually a broker from an outside area who ignores the policy of our Carmel Board. The Carmel Realtors feel that signs on property detract from the natural beauty of the Carmel area. We hope the Carmel residents approve of our policy.

The Carmel Realtors maintain offices in the business district which can be easily found for the convenience of buyers and sellers.

Letters..

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone:
Dear Sir:

As you are aware, the California salmon and steelhead fishery has, over the years, experienced a steady decline, that, if continued, will lead to certain extinction of one of California's prized food and recreation resources.

This decline has come about due to a number of reasons, and, despite the best efforts of our State Fish and Game Department, the deterioration continues. In an effort to reverse this critical decline, Congressman Clem Miller called a meeting of fishery experts from Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, California and the Federal Government at San Rafael in 1959.

From that meeting the U. S. Bureau of Fish and Wildlife, working in close cooperation with the California Department of Fish and Game, has developed a comprehensive rehabilitation program calling for an expenditure of more than 11 million dollars over a ten-year period to provide hatcheries, fish ways, artificial spawning channels, stream clearance, fish screens, gravel restoration and other facilities throughout the salmon-producing streams of California.

Now Senator Clair Engle and Congressman Miller have introduced legislation to put this program into effect. This legislation, co-sponsored in the House of Representatives by Congressman Harold T. "Bizz" Johnson, George Miller, John McFall and Harlin Hagen, has the solid support of California sportsmen and the commercial fishing industry.

Hearings before Congressional committees are expected in the near future. Salmon Unlimited will deeply appreciate your support of this legislation.

We feel very strongly that this resource is worth saving and that these legislative bills by Senator Engle (S 3184) and Congressman Miller (HR 11356) merit the support of all California.

Very sincerely,
Ray E. Welsh, President.

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone:
Dear Sir:

Please accept the very sincere thanks of the Board of Trustees of the Community Hospital and the Building Fund Committee for the devoted efforts on your part in bringing the story of the Community Hospital to the public. Without this help it is hard to see how our results could have been so successful.

Sincerely,
Arnold Manor, M. D.
Chairman
Building Completion
Fund Committee.

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone:
Dear Sir:

I wish to express the immense amount of pleasure I received in witnessing the performance of the young people of San Leandro at the Forest Theater on 29 July. The pleasure arose not only because the theater was filled to overflowing but because it was so gratifying to see over 100 youngsters of high school age contribute budding talent with such sincerity and gusto.

In turn I seethed with displeasure in regard to the way juvenile delinquency in this country is being blown up way out of proportion. As far as I am concerned there are just as many, if not more, adult delinquents. I know quite a few myself.

Let's give our young people some praise for a change. I think they're just great, and to coin a phrase "You can quote me."

Sincerely,
Mrs. Barbara Eliot.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thoraburg

Because of the peripatetic habits of our population, this library tries to keep current in the field of travel and guide books. We have three new ones this week. The latest edition of the Fielding Travel Guide to Europe series is here, this one being for 1962-63. If you intend to travel on a very limited budget, there is the 1962 edition of the Budget Guide to Europe by Howard and Adelaide Stein. This book would be wonderful to own and take right along on your trip. Buy one, though; don't plan to take ours.

The last of three travel books for this week is Sidney Clark's All The Best In South America, West Coast. The book purports to help you get the most out of a trip to Colombia, Panama, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Chile, and/or Argentina. Might be just as well to skip Peru, this trip. You never know.

Inez Robb, who writes a column for the Scripps-Howard newspapers, has just published a collection of her better pieces under the title Don't Just Stand There. The jacket blurb says she is a wise, witty woman, and so she must be to have whipped up these clever bits. We can smile at her pieces about Texas, and glow when she speaks of her love for San Francisco. When she talks about education today, religion in the schools, and the books children love to read, she is serious and thoughtful, and she knows what she is talking about. This book is a delight. Don't just stand there, read it!

The National Geographic magazine has published a largish volume entitled America's Historylands, Touring Our Landmarks of History. Since the magazine is noted for the beauty of its pictures, and this book is full of them, there is little need to say that it is both beautiful and informative.

The Man From Missouri: the Life and Times of Harry S. Truman, is a new book by Alfred Steinberg. Here is an excerpt from the book: "Neither his enemies nor his friends could forget that he had once lost his shirt in the haberdashery business, that he was the product of a nefarious political machine, and that he had been elevated to the national scene from a minor local office... Yet within Harry Truman's lifetime, historians agree that he must be ranked with the strongest of American Presidents." Here it is, the story of Harry Truman, the Man From Missouri.

There are seven new novels, but no new mysteries this week. Wait a week!

Mrs. Alberta MacDonell

Funeral services for Mrs. Alberta A. MacDonell were held yesterday morning in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea with Chaplain John R. Wright officiating. Burial is to be in Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale.

Mrs. MacDonell, whose home was at Mission Street and Tenth Avenue, died there on 3 August. She had lived on the Monterey Peninsula for the past seven years.

She leaves a son, Frederick Cook MacDonell Jr. of San Jose, and four grandchildren.

Mrs. Hilda Randolph

Following a long illness, Mrs. Hilda Randolph, 61, died on 1 August in a San Jose hospital.

She came to live in Carmel in 1942 when her husband, the late Lee Randolph, retired after 25 years as director of the School of Fine Arts in San Francisco. Their studio home on Palou Street became a gathering place for Carmel artists and other friends.

Shortly before Mr. Randolph died in 1956, they moved to a home at Dolores and Eleventh. One of Mr. Randolph's pictures hangs in the museum at city hall which contains the work of deceased artists who have contributed to the artistic development of the community.

Mrs. Randolph was born in England on 10 December, 1900. She leaves a sister, Mrs. Nora Southwell of Santa Barbara.

The Reverend Harvey Buck of St. Mary's-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church conducted funeral services in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea. Interment was in El Carmelo Columbarium.

Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The Mator Mind Returns To Paint Carmel - Peggy Palmer Burrows Here

Peggy Palmer Burrows first started making people laugh when she wrote a column, The Mator Mind, illustrated with caricatures. It was about Carmel persons and events and was published in the Pine Cone. That was in the late Twenties when she was in her teens and she has been making people laugh ever since, besides lots else. The else includes bringing up eight children, publishing the same number of children's books, running a 24-room house and being the wife of a Chicago physician, Dr. Samuel Burrows. And all the time she was painting her humorous pictures, too.

Now she is back in Carmel in a cottage called Bug's Ear, and with her is her youngest daughter, Wendy, 17. Both are sketching Carmel.

This week some of Peggy's laugh-creating pictures are being shown in the Craft Studio's window on San Carlos Street. And if you want to know how she's still making people laugh, see what she can do by caricaturing the work of Leonardo da Vinci, Goya, Holbein, Reynolds and Whistler.

Henry VIII, Blue Boy, Pinkie, Maja Unclothed, Florence Nightingale and Mona Lisa all get the Peggy Palmer Burrows treatment. So does Elsa Maxwell breakfasting in bed with telephones, also a chubby artist at work. The last picture is titled Winston Paints Good As A Prime Minister Should. They will next be exhibited in a show of her work in Scottsdale, Arizona.

Before she leaves early next week, Peggy will have a portfolio of Carmel sketches to add to these pictures.

"I painted three this morning," she said on Tuesday afternoon. But we don't think Wendy did as well that day. When she answered the telephone in the middle of the morning, she said, "I don't know where mother is. She was gone before I waked up."

Carmel Artist Has Mexico City Show

A Carmel artist, Louise Cardeiro Boyer, in a letter to the Pine Cone, tells that until 8 August she is having an exhibition of her paintings in Mexico City at the Instituto Mexicano-Norteamericano de Relaciones Culturales.

She says, "This is one of the bio-national centers maintained by our government in Mexico, Central and South America. Spanish and English classes are offered as well as many cultural programs. It was here Gilbert gave his Mexico City concert last October. The programs are well-attended and representatives of our government from the United States Embassy come to the functions."

Mrs. Boyer's husband, Gilbert, mentioned above, is a pianist. In Carmel he assisted with the training of Bach Festival choruses and was a founder and musical director of the Carmel Chamber Music Society among other activities. He is now regional director for Latin America under the Laubach Literacy Fund, Inc. and is on a tour of this organization's existing projects in Quetzaltenango, Guatemala, and Sao Paulo, Brazil, Mrs. Boyer reports.

The Boyers already have worked in this group's projects in Mexico at Tijuana, Valle de Bravo and Mexico City.

Mrs. Boyer's letter adds, "In mid-August I will fly to meet Gilbert in Guayaquil, Ecuador, to help with the work of the Centro Social there. Later we will be training Peace Corps workers in Bolivia, instructing them in the methods of teaching developed by Dr. Laubach, and which have been successful in 100 countries."

The letter was sent from Mexico City but Mrs. Boyer remarks "we have for the present time no permanent headquarters."

Cello Concerts Next At Saratoga Festival

The eighth annual summer music festival at Montalvo in Saratoga enters its second phase 17 and 19 August with 19-year-old cellist Christine Walevska as concert artist; in the evening on the first date at 8:30 o'clock; on the second in the afternoon at 3:30. Her accompanist will be Thomas Ryan, professor of music at San Jose State College.

The program for both concerts will be Pieces en Concert by Couperin; Suite in C major by J. S. Bach; Sonata by Pierre Sancan; Nigun from Baal Shem by Ernest Bloch; and Variations on a Roco Theme by Tchaikowsky.

Christine at the age of 16 won the highest honor the Conservatoire de Paris can bestow; the only American ever to do so.

Since returning to the United States, she has played with symphonies and in recital in Southern California and at the University of California. She is a former student of Gabor Rejto; later was coached by Piatigorsky.

Tickets for her Montalvo concerts may be obtained by writing to Box 158, Saratoga.

Recital Sunday At Presbyterian Church

Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Carmel Presbyterian Church there will be an organ recital given by the organist of the church, J. Stephen Janzen. The church's Allen electric organ is one of the largest on the West Coast. It was a gift to the Carmel Presbyterian Church by Mrs. Edgar C. B. Kirsopp in memory of her husband, an elder of the Carmel church.

Mr. Janzen, the organist, came to the Carmel Presbyterian Church in June after graduation from Union Theological Seminary in New York City where he received his master of sacred music degree. He is a native of San Jose, who has studied piano since the age of six, and received his B. A. at San Jose State College. He has also studied organ with Richard Purvis in San Francisco and Reginald Greenbrook in San Jose. The public is invited.

ART ASSOCIATION OPENS

Yesterday a new show of the work of members of the Carmel Art Association opened at the organization's galleries on Dolores Street. Ethlyn Crouch was chairman of the hanging committee this month.

Monday, 7:30 p.m., the association's board of directors will hold their August meeting.

Dan Marshall Gives Organ Recital Sunday

Daniel Marshall, 1955 Carmel High School graduate, will present an organ recital Sunday following Evening Prayer at 5:15 p.m. in All Saints' Episcopal Church. Now serving in the U.S. Army and stationed at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, Dan is home on a two-week furlough. He served the Carmel parish as assistant organist in his years here. After graduation from Carmel High he entered Yale University and graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in 1959, then did graduate work at the Union Theological Seminary in New York City, which granted him a master of sacred music degree in 1961.

His recital next Sunday will include works by Dupres and the St. Anne Fugue by J. S. Bach.

Thieves' Carnival At Tantomount Theatre

but woefully lacking in substance. In some instances it proves to be too much for them. I regret having to say that as Roselle Weinfeld played the part of Eva it was entirely too juvenile. She was supposed to have been a sophisticated and blase widow. If, instead, she had been separated from her husband by annulment rather than by death, I might have been able to accept her rather innocent portrayal.

The production prays a separate paragraph for several enchanting pieces of theater. Dwight Edman is cast as Musician, but he is a device rather than a character. He is, in fact, Chorus, employed as the Greeks and the Elizabethans might have done. His puckish clarinet weaves with mock mournfulness, spurious sadness and gleeful impudence throughout the play, interlude and counterpoint to the dramatic action. The costumes are brilliant, the sets simple and elegant, complementing but not competing with the play. The opening of the show, a fast-paced and rousing pantomime, and the opening of the third act, staged in silhouette before a gorgeous teal blue back light, were captivating.

I wish that I could avoid any mention of the play itself. But I must let the other shoe drop. I suppose that I may be damned as an idiot for saying that Anouilh, at least in this reconnaissance, is dreadfully trivial; more than that, he is vain. The Thieves' Carnival, which contains some awfully fatuous material, is not a play at all, in the sense of being a vehicle for actors. It is a vehicle for Anouilh to say Heaven only knows what, but it isn't very important, whatever it is.

I think the play is supposed to portray the conflict between innocence and corruption — and it's rather innocent corruption, I might add. But that's the only message

I could get out of it, and I resent the confusion of values which insists on messages much as some gauche people insist on good manners.

The play could have been brilliant and trivial; Sheridan gave ample proof of this. Or it could have been socially devastating and amusing; both Aristophanes and Shaw demonstrated this. It could have thumbed its nose at any purpose at all, and come off quite successfully. As a matter of fact, Lady Hurf says at one point that she was "in the mood for a gigantic piece of folly." And so was I. But the author was not, evidently. He succumbed to the vanity of his own intellect and let the stern requirements of good drama—character definition, development and plausibility—go hang. Shakespeare, Chekov, and Moliere, for all their genius, never forgot that it was the play, and not they, which had to succeed and the characters and their involvement were the instruments of success.

When I say that Anouilh paid his characters only "lip service," I mean it literally. He treated them with cavalier indifference, or astounding incompetence—I care less which — and it is to the eternal credit of The Actors' Company that they came home so creditably after riding such a cardboard horse.

White Oaks Theatre Strikes Oil In Wildcat

her. Together they belt out some fine songs, too, You're A Liar, and with the ensemble, Give A Little Whistle. Joe does a fine job with You've Come Home and Corduroy Road. Wildy's That's What I Want For Janie is a most appealing number.

Jeanne Bartlett's lame Janie is properly sweet. Martin Gregg, as Hank, in a touching performance, gives her love and the confidence to dance. Lee Melville is a wonderful long, lean sheriff. Hazel Greene as the whimsical Countess Emily O'Brien almost persuades the audience to join her in a turnip juice snort. That she leads Sookie to wash is understandable. This "dirty man" is played by Ron Mullen who adds another part to his previous high-scoring roles. Jonathan Hugger and Maria Anderson again delight with their dancing.

Other members of the cast, either citizens of Centavo City or members of the well-digging crew, are James Ellingwood, Stuart Smith, Bill Reckers, Philip Lottman, Tani Bowman, Toni Brandt, Laddy Kratky, Martie McFarland, Lydia Morrison, and Verna Winters.

Gale F. Peterson is responsible for the lively choreography; Eleanor Stoltz the costumes; Richard Smart the sets. Technical direction and lighting design is by Arthur Conn. Chris Nance capably handles musical direction. At the piano, with Ed Mortimer, bass, and Paul Callaghan, drums, he starts each Wildcat performance with an overture followed by the first round of applause from the audience.

Producer and director of the White Oaks Summer Theatre's third show this season is Sally Hughes Church. —M. L.

Where There's Life

By Andre Hope

It's very difficult for a resident of a resort town to be a tourist elsewhere. One is forced to compare, and so many other locales suffer by comparison. I think San Francisco is an exception, and feeling in the mood for a small vacation, I visited there a week or so past. Herein a Carmelite's view of The City.

For utter relaxation the only way to go is, of course, on the S. P.'s Del Monte. Eddie Elkins meets you at the entrance to the parlor car like a maitre d', and you are already imbued with the spirit of your adventure. . . . Comfort, breakfast, the morning paper and California waking up outside the windows. (I will have more to say about Eddie at a later date; a rare man in our age, who still combines dignity, pride, humor and thoughtfulness in his occupation.)

The first concern in The City is your favorite hotel. Mine happens to be The Cliff. The food is excellent, as is the service. The staff remains more or less unchanged, which says much for the management. Well, let's face it, Dwight Hart, the manager, is an old school friend of Roger's and mine. Secondly, you must have flowers of some sort; a new, long stemmed red rose called the Love Rose, for instance. Now, you're on the town.

It was sort of suggested that I stay away from Magnin's, a failing of mine, so I wish-shopped through Gump's, oriental art; Abercrombie's, sporty stuff; Shreve's; and Podesta's fabulous flower shop instead. Across from Podesta's there is a little alley containing a Newbegin's book shop, an excellent gallery, and the Roccoco Temple Bar. Then, Chinatown, Madame Butterfly, with the loveliest oriental clothes this side of the Tokyo Shop in Carmel. There is the exotic Ricksha in blind alley Waverly Place, looking with veiled eyes at the neighboring herb shops, tiny garment factories and wonderfully mysterious dopers with no name at all, but people coming and going.

Broadway to Barnaby Conrad's El Matador. Here the atmosphere is masculine, attractive, papered with pictures of matadors, capes, bulls' heads, ears and tails. There are also some beautiful tropical birds in a glass cage, the best (I was told by my escort) martinis in town. Also found some very intriguing decor in the powder room.

The Roaring Twenties on Montgomery; all manner of Tiffany and stained glass, peanuts and popcorn, two girls on velvet swings. People throw balloons, peanuts and popcorn at them. Good, clean, masculine fun. Seems to make everyone feel better somehow. . . . Gold Street — more tingling twenties. The Alley outside covered with gold carpeting on which cars drive and weary-footed gals walk barefoot with their pointy little shoes in hand.

Doro's, near Jackson Square, where decorators have an easy time convincing their clients of almost anything. Used brick walls combined with rosy leather banquettes, the kind of paneling you like to stroke, a chandelier like a refugee from a mythical jeweled forest, reflected in the silver-white terrazzo table tops, and the subtle, lovely odor of beautifully prepared food about to be served.

La Scala with the sound of opera everywhere, and the espresso machines gleaming and frightening (don't you have the feeling they may blow up at any moment?). White Nuns there; a combination (I think) of coffee, cream, brandy and Kahlua. Then home through Union Square, where the pigeons are too drowsy to take flight and do any damage to your hat.

The City closes its thousand eyes one at a time and you can hardly wait for tomorrow.

Tomorrow: next week — and the secrets of San Francisco kitchens.

Army Duty Over

Sam Morse is home after completing active Army duty at Fort Lewis, Washington. He plans, in September, to resume architectural studies at California State Polytechnic College in San Luis Obispo which were interrupted when he was recalled into the Army six months ago.

Among The Pines

Mrs. Carlson Back From East

Being present at the inauguration of the new president of the National Association of Presswomen, at which Newton Minnow, president of the F. C. C., was the witty master of ceremonies, was among the many highlights of Mrs. Jerome E. Carlson's recent trip East to visit her sons, Pierre, Herbert and Richard Salinger, and their families. Mrs. Carlson was delighted to discover, when she met Mr. Minnow, that he and Pierre had worked together on Adlai Stevenson's presidential campaign. At the inauguration and reception Mrs. Carlson was the guest of Jeannette Rudellat, White House correspondent for the United States Information Services.

Incidentally, the new president of the presswomen's association, Mrs. Patti Cavin, well-known on television in Washington with a program interviewing women in the Capital "who do interesting things," is a friend of Commander and Mrs. James E. Raynes of Carmel Valley; her husband visited the Rayneses two years ago.

Mrs. Carlson also enjoyed meeting Edward R. Murrow, director of U. S. I. S., and Senator and Mrs. Wayne Morse; standing in the Rose Garden at the White House with Mrs. David Pittfield, a former Carmel resident, watching President Kennedy take off for Cape Cod in his helicopter with a special wave of his hand for the two ladies; watching a private viewing of the U. S. I. S. film made of Mrs. Kennedy's trip to India; spending a few days at the Yachtsman Hotel at Hyannis Port to visit a grandson in a nearby summer camp, and sitting on a Sunday with members of the press right behind the Kennedys in church.

Through her son, Herbert Salinger, who is special consultant on youth for Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg, Mrs. Carlson saw a good deal of the Goldbergs, was impressed by Mrs. Goldberg's activities with youth programs in Virginia and the District of Columbia, also by her being "a fine painter," and by the Secretary's collection of contemporary paintings on his office walls. She also visited her son, Richard Salinger, who is superintendent of science in the high school at Wilton, Connecticut, and at his home met Bernard Asbell, author of When FDR Died, an account in documentary style of the impact upon ordinary citizens of President Roosevelt's death.

Probably her most interesting experience, Mrs. Carlson states, was being "a quiet observer" in the White House office of her son, Pierre Salinger, the President's press secretary, watching people come and go, "often Mr. Kennedy himself."

Mrs. Winslow At Highlands Inn

Mrs. Yvonne Winslow of Berkeley, a former Carmel Highlands resident, is staying at the Highlands Inn for two weeks. With her is Mrs. Eleanor McKinney, who is on vacation from a position with radio station WBAI in New York City, an affiliate of Berkeley's non-commercial FM station, KPFA.

Mrs. Winslow's son, Garth, at one time a Carmel High School student, and who attended universities in Mexico and Spain, is now in Portland, Oregon, working in Emanuel General Hospital as an alternative to military service.

Willoxes Will Fly To Germany

It will be Lolli Willox's first visit to her native Germany since 1936, when she and her husband, Carmel architect George Willox, leave on 29 August to fly over the pole to Frankfurt, and then as quickly as possible go on to Munich, which will be their headquarters, with side trips into Italy and Austria where they have many friends.

Lolli's sister, Anni, whose husband, Dr. Franz Reid, is also an architect ("two sisters married two architects"), lives in Munich. The Reids were in Carmel a year ago, and it was their visit here that sparked the idea of the Willoxes' trip.

During the six weeks that Lolli and George will be away, their house will be occupied by Mrs. Gretchen Gray of San Rafael, a former "off and on" resident of Carmel, who hopes her old friends will get in touch with her while she is here.

Bruce Edwards Arrives

Carmel High School's principal, Warren Edwards, and Mrs. Edwards welcomed their third child and second son, Bruce Tomlin, on 26 July. Everyone is enjoying the new baby, who, according to Mrs. Edwards, is "doing beautifully," and competition is running high between older brother, Bill, 13, and older sister, Peggy, 11, concerning whose turn it is to help take care of little Bruce.

Dr. and Mrs. Hiram Edwards of Berkeley are the baby's grandparents.

Completes Aircraft Course

Army Private Thomas G. Stanford; son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Stanford of Carmel, recently completed the five-week aircraft maintenance entry course at the aviation school at Fort Rucker, Alabama.

Tom, who entered the Army last March, is a 1959 graduate of Carmel High School and attended California State Polytechnic College, San Luis Obispo.

At Valley Party

Among the hundred or so guests who attended Harry Gillett's costume party at Rancho Del Monte Country Club Saturday night were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherry, Betty Schaeffler, Carmel Valley's postmaster Sam Brandt (who was master of ceremonies) and Mrs. Brandt, Peter Vincent, Betty and Mike Antonich, Dr. and Mrs. Ian Kinnear, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hefling and Mrs. Carol Rheams.

The party-goers came dressed as representing their suppressed desires, and the prize winners were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rauber of Carmel Valley, clad respectively as a Roman matron of classic times, and a Roman gladiator.

Ensign Raggett In San Diego

Ensign Michael M. Raggett, who graduated in June from the United States Naval Academy, was given a week's leave between three weeks of mine-sweeping school instruction in Charleston, South Carolina, and a similar assignment in San Diego. The week's leave was travel time from one base to the other, but by flying west, Mike was able to spend most of his leave at home with his parents, Mr. and

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The practical value of striving for perfection will be stressed at Christian Science church services Sunday.

"Spirit" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read. It will include this admonition of Christ Jesus (Matthew 5): "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

Among the correlative citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following:

"The divine demand, 'Be ye therefore perfect,' is scientific, and the human footsteps leading to perfection are indispensable. Individuals are consistent who, watching and praying, can run, and not be weary; ... walk, and not faint, who gain good rapidly and hold their position, or attain slowly and yield not to discouragement. God requires perfection, but not until the battle between Spirit and flesh is fought and the victory won" (p. 253).

TASSAJARA SPRINGS

AN OLD SPA AT THE END OF A MISERABLE MOUNTAIN ROAD

If this puts you off, know also that this MMR is scenic, exhilarating, grand, challenging* and nearly the last of the lot. It leads to a place of sunshine and serenity, a resort in the old tradition set in the center of one of California's last great wilderness areas. Our food is seasoned and imaginatively planned. Our recreations are gentle and imaginatively unplanned. Possibly Tassajara is the place in the country you've been hoping to find.

Sue Mason, George Dovolis Wed

Mr. and Mrs. George Dovolis, Jr. are in their new home at Cabrillo and Carpenter streets in Carmel. The former Karen Sue Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Aitken of Carmel, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dovolis of Monterey were married on 28 July in the First Presbyterian Church of Monterey.

Sue's white satin and lace floor-length gown had a wide, rounded neckline, a full skirt and cathedral train. Her veil was held with a pearl crown, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and small white carnations clustered around an orchid corsage.

The Reverend Paul Baird, performed the ceremony. Lynn Lashbrook, a family friend, sang I Love You Truly and Because.

Maxa Tadlock, the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Georgene Dovolis, sister of the bridegroom, Mary Warmoth, Ovilee Groom, and Pat Campbell, wore identical pink satin dresses with matching organza overskirts and small veils held by pearls. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Darinda Dovolis, the bridegroom's younger sister, was the flower girl in a pale green organza frock. Stephen Mason, the bride's brother, was the ring bearer. Sue has another brother, Gary. The best man was Mike Collier, and ushers were Brian Zeil, Mike Nealthy, Fred Mountford, and Perry Cross.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Aitken chose a gold chiffon dress with matching accessories and a gold orchid corsage. Mrs. Dovolis wore a gray sheath, also with gold accessories and corsage.

Nearly 200 guests gathered in the Fellowship Hall of the church for the reception, including Mr. and Mrs. John Dovolis of Sunnyvale, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Christopher of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nelson of Coyote, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Cook and Miss Valerie Logorio of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Christ, Mrs. Frank Fontis, Mrs. Lennie Campbell and Mrs. Justine Lown, all of Salinas.

Sue was graduated from Sunset School and attended Carmel High School where she was a song leader for two years. George was graduated from Monterey High School and has been a student at Monterey Peninsula College.

Houseguests At Theises'

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Talbert of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, are houseguests of Captain William N. Theis (USN Ret.) and Mrs. Theis. Mrs. Talbert is Mrs. Theis's sister.

The Talberts and their daughter, Lindy, who have visited the West several times before, are planning to desert Pennsylvania in favor of a California home. Lindy has completed three years at Duke University and will enroll as a senior this fall at San Jose State College.

The Theises' older daughter, Laylon, will be a hostess at the arts and crafts exhibit in the Monterey County Fair this month, and in September will return to California State Polytechnic College at San Luis Obispo for her sophomore year. Their younger daughter, Nola, is this week winding up summer school at Carmel High School where she will be a junior next fall.

Visiting Brownells

Here for three weeks is Mrs. Paul Terry Lawrence who divides her time each year between her homes in Cleveland, Ohio, and Palm Beach Florida. She is the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Brownell.

During her visit, Mrs. Lawrence is enjoying seeing friends of the Brownells whom she met when she was here before.

Jennifer Jones Visits

Jennifer Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Jones, Jr. of Sacramento, is spending this week in Carmel as the houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. William Rosenkrantz.

Jennifer attended Carmel schools when her family were former residents here.

Boz Williams Home

Boz Williams blew into town from the East coast late Monday night, having flown to San Francisco and caught a ride to Carmel. At present he is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Foster and their family on Hatton Fields Mesa. Boz and Joe Foster are Carmel High School classmates and old friends. Boz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Laidlaw Williams, are summering in Baddeck, Nova Scotia, and will return to their Carmel Highlands home at a later date.

Suzanne And Tony To Wed Soon

Suzanne Crocker and Anthony White have chosen 25 August for their wedding in the Church of St. Matthew in San Mateo. Suzanne is the daughter of Mrs. Norton Adams and the late Dr. Charles Crocker of Pebble Beach; Mrs. Earle Maury Elrick of Caracas, Venezuela, is her sister, and her brother is Charles Crocker.

Donna Work of Pebble Beach will be Suzanne's maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Penny Bunn of Carmel and Gail Plam of Minnesota.

Tony, the son of Mrs. Richard M. White of Carmel and the late Mr. White, has asked his older brother Richard to be his best man. The ushers will include his younger brother, Philip White, Steve Farrand, Neil Giarratana and Tom Yale.

Richard White's five-year-old daughter, Donna, will be the flower girl.

A reception following the ceremony will be held at the Burlingame Country Club.

Suzanne graduated from Chatham Hall, Virginia, and Bennett College in New York, and has been studying at San Francisco College for Women. She made her debut at the Burlingame Country Club and the Debutante Cotillion in San Francisco in 1959.

Tony, an ensign in the United States Naval Reserve, graduated from Carmel High School, and in 1961 from Stanford University.

New Buffington Grandchild

Mr. and Mrs. James Buffington Jr. welcome a new granddaughter, Laurie, who joined the Vincent R. Colletto family on 3 August. She has two sisters, Julie and Gina, and a brother, Jimmy. The children's mother is the Buffingtons' daughter, Betty.

McClouds Home From Travels

An around-the-world trip which began in February took Mr. and Mrs. Walter McCloud through the Orient, India, the Mediterranean countries, and northern Europe, including a visit to the Isle of Skye in Scotland for a gathering of Clan McCleod (from which the name McCloud derives). Their daughter, Susan, who has a position with Crown Zellerbach in San Francisco, travelled with her parents for part of the time.

The McClouds are now home in Carmel. Mrs. McCloud is president of the Carmel Business Association.

Mary McElroy Williams Here

"I am the eternal baby-sitter," declares Ruth Marion McElroy, far-from-daunted grandmother of 15. Among her temporary charges this month she is including the five children of her daughter, Mary.

The three girls and two boys range in age from eight to three years and, starting with the eldest, are Cameron, Nanette, George, Susan and Cynthia.

Mary's husband, Howard Cameron Williams, will join his wife and children next week before they return to their home in Palos Verdes.

THE CRISP WALK ON THE BEACH was wonderful. Now, while your guests gather round the middle-of-the-room fireplace, you set out a fondue or a buffet supper (previously prepared in the big, modern kitchen) on the quarry tile counters of the butler's pantry. Then enjoy with your guests the fine acoustics which the cathedral ceiling and paneled walls provide for your stereophonic equipment. When the last embers die, you retire to your own suite and your guests to theirs, in a separate end of the house. Next morning, breakfast in the sunny South patio. This is a sociable house — a house to live in, a house to love, and one which will delight your family and friends with its originality (and carefree maintenance) for years to come. Price? That's the best part — only $35,000 — and in one of Carmel's most prestigious neighborhoods. Why not call now for the delightful details?

Carmel Volunteer Fire Department Report

fire alarms were delayed for at least four or five hours before anyone noticed the fire."

It continues: "In spite of the increased activity, our volunteers continued to turn out at all times of the day and night, in all weather. During this year Volunteers gave 4,157 man-hours to the residents and City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Over a thousand man-hours were spent on fire fighting duties. They (the volunteers) made 123 ambulance calls and are credited with saving more than two dozen lives through prompt response on resuscitator and first aid calls."

Chief Smith's introduction also notes an abnormal number of electrical fires, which he attributes to increased use of electrical appliances, i.e., TV sets, electric dish washers and garbage disposal units. He concludes with the observation that the transient and the visitor to Carmel accounts for approximately 50% of first aid calls, 30% of fire calls and in excess of 50% of the calls to wash down spilled gasoline. (The car which burned yesterday on Ocean Avenue was that of a visitor.)

It is not uncommon for such reports as this, with an eye on the budget, public support and favorable publicity, to extoll the virtues of the personnel, the efficiency of operation and the inestimable value of the department. To the credit of Chief Smith and the volunteers, no time was lost in such transparent drum-beating. The balance of the extensive and deliberate statement was dedicated to a scrupulous and exhaustive statistical examination of the facts and figures on fire fighting, fire prevention, treatment of the injured and the tragic circumstance of the dead.

Before considering these, and because the department saw fit to abstain from remarking on the very wonderful service it renders, it should be said here that appreciation cannot be over-indulged. Whether it is based upon the fact that the continued existence of a largely-volunteer department is saving the city tens of thousands of dollars a year, or whether it arises from a certain sense of gratitude and pride in the countless hours of unrewarded public service, a giving of self to the common good of all, Carmel and its people should hold the Volunteer Fire Department in high esteem.

The wealth of figures contained in the report shows that there were 118 fire alarms sounded last year, not all of them, however, on the peremptory siren that brings the volunteers running to the equipment at the Fire House on Sixth Avenue. Only 34 of these were general alarms. The rest were still alarms, frequently sounded on the closed telephone circuit installed in the homes of many of the volunteers apt to be frequently out of sound range of the siren.

An average of 22 volunteers responded to the general alarms, 21 to the regular Thursday night drills. Twenty members carry advanced first aid cards, ten carry standard first aid cards.

The department rushed on 39 calls to dwelling structures, including hotels and apartments. They responded 23 times to alarms from business establishments. And a surprising 43 times, equipment was rolled because of automobile fires or gasoline spills. In addition, mutual aid, grass fires, trash containers, schools and a broken gas main brought the department into action during the year.

Cigarette-ignited fires were the largest in number, but faulty fireplaces, grease on kitchen ranges, malfunctioning furnaces, faulty wiring, appliances, children with matches, leaking carburetors, and even an electrical storm, were other causes of combustion. No cases of suspected or known arson were filed.

One might suspect the still and early morning hours as being the period in which most fires seem to start, or at least are discovered. The report, however, shows that the hour from 11 a.m. to noon is the time of highest frequency. During the year, 18 alarms were received in this period, and this is borne out by the five-year total—49. Actually, the time between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.—an almost precise correlation with the time of greatest activity in home and business—accounts for the great majority of alarms. Contrarily, none were rung in between the hours of midnight and 3 a.m. Tuesday and Friday were the days of greatest incidence, although no particular distinction can be made between these days and others. One day was apparently as good as any other, if a fire was going to happen.

The statistics are seemingly endless and invariably interesting. But the report also contains extracts from the department's log. Told in terse, innocent and undramatic language, the simple statements evoke the fear, sadness, horror, apprehension, panic and misfortune of the emergency which lurks ruthlessly behind negligence, carelessness, confusion and foolhardiness. But occasionally the warm, human and touchingly amusing event breaks the sober alertness which must attend the duty of a man waiting for disaster to strike. When such happy triviality occurs, it too finds its way into the conscientious record of the things that happen in a fire department:

28 June, 1962: "Seven-year-old boy brought small black puppy to firehouse for first aid. Puppy had thorn in paw. First aid administered to dog. Boy complained of scratched knee. Band-aid applied. Boy given root beer and junior fire marshal's badge; puppy given bite of salami. Both returned the following day for additional first aid treatment."

YOUTH CENTER HELP FROM MPVS FUNDS

Miss Nancy Baxter, representing the Carmel Youth Center, last Friday accepted a check in the amount of $1,750.13 from Mrs. Laurids Jorgenson, on behalf of the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services, Inc. During the month of July the entire net proceeds of the MPVS thrift shop were allocated to the assistance of the self-supporting Carmel youth activity.

Donations of $250 to the Monterey County Symphony Association, $250 to the Carmel Pony League, and $500 to the Monterey Bay Council of the Boy Scouts of America, for fire fighting equipment, were also authorized.

TEENAGERS HURT IN CAR ACCIDENT

Four teenagers were involved in an automobile accident last night while driving north on Highway One just beyond Via Castaneda shortly after 11 p.m.

An unknown driver cut in front of Michael Smith, 19, Pebble Beach, and caused him to drive across the double line. In an attempt to straighten out, the youth lost control of his car and it flipped over, then slid on its top and hit another group, which had been brought into existence in December of 1959, had been sealed after a debate in July, at which time Councilman Putnam had vehemently fought a rear guard action. Last night's interment ceremonies were without sermon, although the council later adopted a resolution commending the members of the expired commission for their dedicated work.

Precisely, and without debate, the council also proceeded to confirm the achievement of regular status of Robert W. Parkhurst, a streetman in the street department; regular status and advancement of James M. Cardwell, a fireman; salaries for Betty Gross and Winifred G. Carpenter, clerks in the office of the city clerk; restriction of parking in front of the Circle Theatre on Casanova south of Eighth Avenue.

After having provided fire protection to the Carmel High School, Woods, River and Carmel Mission Basilica elementary schools for several years at the token rate of $1 per year, city fathers adopted a report of the committee on public welfare recommending that the city henceforth charge 75% of the premiums saved by the school bodies by virtue of the savings realized through city fire protection.

Councilman Francis Whitaker, commenting on the report of his committee, said, "the school district may save between $1,000 and $1,666 in premiums. We arrived at this compromise figure because 75% of the schools are outside of the city and 75% of the students live outside of the city. We wanted 100% of the premiums and the school authorities with whom we met (Superintendent Stuart Mitchell and Assistant Superintendent Wayne Greenfield) proposed 50%. It was a compromise."

Responding to the inquiry of Councilman Herbert Blanks, Whitaker said that no agreement had been reached, and that adoption of the report would merely give the committee a basis for further negotiations with the School District and Carmel Basilica authorities. Until such time as a re-survey of exposure, including for the first time the new junior high school, is completed, the actual savings cannot be determined.

Completing their assault upon the uninspiring agenda, the council granted to Police Chief Clyde Klaumann a leave of absence without pay for the months of September and October; authorized Whitaker to attend a scenic highway conference in San Luis Obispo on 9 October, with instructions to push for a declaration of the Salinas-Monterey Highway as a scenic route; granted permission for the Stuart Highlanders to parade Ocean Avenue 26 August as a part of the bagpipe concert in the Forest Theater on that date; provided for limited parking on Mission Street between Fifth and Fourth avenues; approved a 10% increase in the insurable value of city buildings; took notice of the hearing on the transfer of the franchise for the airport buses from Lucille Princeau, long-time operator, to Dalton Hafner and Rudolph Dockter, of Monterey.

The meeting, first to be presided over by Mayor Whittlesey since his return from Europe and England last Monday, was adjourned at 9:30 p.m., no record, but reasonably close to the 9:04 p.m. record for a regular meeting set under the mayoralty of Frank Putnam, who watched the clock anxiously until 9:05 p.m., when he relaxed with visible relief, assured that his successor would not pull a Maris on him that night.

car going in the same direction and driven by Michael Lee, 42, Monterey.

Passengers in the Smith car, Judy Downs, 15, Pebble Beach, Joseph Selden, 19, Pebble Beach, and Christine Guest, 14, Pacific Grove, were taken to Monterey Hospital for treatment of injuries.

Automation Triumphant — Children selling lemonade from an orange crate or a card table at the side of the road, their stand advertised with crayon-lettered signs, with at least one "n" written backwards, is as characteristic of summer throughout the United States as any other manifestation of Americana you can think of. Somehow it touches every base in our ethos: enterprise, good clean fun, sunshine and fresh air, character-building, etc.

Recently, on Rio Road, south of the Mission, I saw a vision of America. It gave me unshakable confidence in the future. The ghosts that haunt my sleepless nights are laid to rest. I want our President not to worry and Nikita Krushchev to forget it, for now I know that American youth, in spite of what is said, can still rise to the challenge of the times.

Linda Palmer and her sister, Jeannine, of Mission Fields, and Maria Aliotti and her sister, Janet, of Monterey, had gotten together to beat the competitive problems which have threatened to put the historic and nostalgic junior roadside lemonade entrepreneur out of business.

They were operating a lemonade vending machine, certainly the first in these parts if not in all of the world. A large cardboard box sat on a table, and the four girls were squeezed in behind it, with glasses, cups, towels, pans of water, cash box and ecstatic squeals at the approach of a customer, which are the vital ingredients of such an enterprise.

The front of the box advertised in purple and magenta crayon lemonade at 2c a glass, 5c a cup, and 15c a jug. An irresistible trap door in the middle commanded "Put Money In Here!"

Who, passing on the highway, could resist? Certainly, not I. Nice thing about it, there were no buttons to push, no whirring of motors, or grinding of gears; just girlish laughter, wild confusion, no change, and a delicious glass of lemonade. The best machine I've yet seen.

If this is the ultimate in mechanization—and I'm sure it is—then I'm coming out for automation right now. One thing, though. They were out of cups and jugs when I got there. If you're going to patronize them I'd suggest you arrive early.

W. H. Parsons

William Henry Parsons, 74, who had lived here for the past 25 years, died following a long illness in his home in Hatton Fields on 3 August.

Mr. Parsons was born in New York City on 29 May, 1888. He received his preparatory education at the Hill School in Pottstown, Pennsylvania, then entered Yale University and graduated as a member of the Class of 1910. He was a World War I veteran.

Survivors are his wife, Anna S. Parsons of Carmel; a son, Roy D. Parsons of Beverly Hills; and two sisters, Mrs. Richardson Pratt and Miss Mary M. Parsons, both of New York City.

Private services, arranged by Paul Mortuary, were held in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea.

Edward White

Edward Allen White, who toured Europe and the United States during the many years he was associated with the entertainment business, died on 4 August in a local hospital after a short illness. He had resided in Carmel for the past eight years. His home was at Lincoln Street and Seventh Avenue.

Mr. White was born in Lowell, Massachusetts, on 20 August, 1886.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret Jean Simpson White, and a brother, Frank J. White of Los Angeles.

Rosary was recited Tuesday evening in Mission Mortuary.

Requiem mass was celebrated yesterday morning in Carmel Mission Basilica. Burial was in Mission Memorial Park.

Friends wishing to honor Mr. White's memory may do so in the form of spiritual bouquets or by donations to charities.
